Bridging to Adulthood Tips: Mental Health Resources for Young Adults with Disabilities

What is mental health care?

Mental health care addresses emotional, psychological and social wellbeing. Services may be with psychiatrists, psychologists, doctors, social workers, psychotherapists, nurses, occupational therapists, counselors, case managers or peer support workers.

The transition to adulthood is a time of change. Youth and/or families may want to speak to someone about adapting to new life roles and activities, relationships, mood, emotions, stress, or other topics.

Are you in crisis or need immediate mental health support?

- Go to the emergency department at a hospital or call 911 if you or someone else is in immediate danger or in need of emergency services. State if you are a member of the Vulnerable Person's Registry and/or ask if there is a mental health crisis response team.
- Call Kids Help Phone 24/7 by calling 1-800-668-6868 or text CONNECT to 686868.
- Contact a telephone, online or chat crisis line. See CAMH's Crisis Resource Directory, Distress and Crisis Ontario listings, or eMental Health Crisis listings.
- If you are a youth with an intellectual disability who is in crisis, also contact your Developmental Services Ontario (DSO) case manager to provide an update on your situation and seek additional support as applicable.

Other things to consider:

- Ask questions to potential providers
   It's your right to ask about a provider's credentials expertise, wait times, office hours, communication style, experience with specific conditions etc.
- Consider accessibility of potential providers

Is the service offered virtually, at home, in the community, at a clinic or in a hospital? Will you be able to physically access the building's parking lot, entrance, washrooms, waiting area and rooms? Will the sensory environment be okay or overwhelming? Can the office provide accommodations such as extra time for mobility or waiting in a quiet area rather than the busy waiting room? Are there other personal considerations to help with accessibility?
